

An Evening with Tony Dye

Tony Dye, who appeared recently in the Money Programme report on the dot.com industry is well known for remaining underweight technology stocks during the period of investor madness which saw the Nasdaq rise from a level of 1500 in October 1998 to a level over 5000 in March 2000. Whilst working at PDFM, he earned himself the sobriquet. 'Doctor Doom'.

Tony resigned from PDFM two weeks before the Nasdaq peaked at a level of 5048 on March 10th 2000. Since then, the Nasdaq bubble has burst and the index has tumbled to a level currently below 2000 and he has launched his own hedge fund company called Dye Asset Management which continues to underweight technology stocks.

Tony has over thirty years experience in the asset management industry, working for the following companies; London Life, Colonial Mutual Life and Phillips & Drew. Like Nicola Horlick, he has transcended the City to become a household name.

Tony will talk about his approach and style to investing in the equity markets and the evening will operate under Chatham House rules, everything said is strictly off the record. After his presentation there will be a question and answer session and light refreshments.

If anyone requires further information on the content of the evening, please contact Stephen Inkley on 02075977008 or e mail at stephen.inkley@daiwasbi.co.uk.
