Call for Participation

Leading international industry and academic representatives from different fields, as well as policy makers, will meet and discuss not only the assessment of longevity risk, but also the market and government developments and responses needed by pension funds and insurance companies to manage this risk. We would like you to join them.

The key themes of Longevity 12 will be product innovation, sidecars, and data reliability challenges and timeliness. Key speakers include:

- Jay Olshansky, University of Illinois at Chicago: "The Rise and Fall of Human Longevity in the 21st Century"
- Aubrey de Grey, Chief Science Officer of SENS Research Foundation: "Longevity Escape Velocity: Incorporating Technological Progress into Extrapolation"
- James W. Vaupel, Max Planck Institute for Demographic Research, Rostock: "The Past and Future Rise of Human Longevity"
- Stuart Silverman, Milliman, Silver Sponsor: "Diversification of Longevity and Mortality Risk"
- Amy Kessler, Prudential Financial, Platinum Sponsor: "New Solutions To An Age-Old Problem: Innovative strategies for managing pension and longevity risk"
- James Ciamarro, RGA Life Reinsurance Company, Gold Sponsor: "Longevity Risk Transfer: A Harbinger From the True North"
- Vladimir Nicenko, Willkie Farr & Gallagher, Silver Sponsor: "Sidecars"
- Richard Sandor, Founder of the Chicago Climate Exchange (CCX): "How Can We Get a New Market Off The Ground – The Lessons I have Learned"
- Magali Barbieri, Associate Director, Human Mortality Database: "Data quality issues and adjustments in the Human Mortality Database"
